Unstable moves, stable waits · packages built per week

Counts only versions still in the repo, so older weeks look smaller. The last stable update came in W37. Stable builds since then: W38 4, W39 1, W40 5, W41 3, W42 68, W43 141 (unannounced security fixes).

Update waves on this laptop · days with ≥ 200 upgrades

Median gap between waves: 20 d. Last wave: 2026-09-07. Upgrades in October 2026 so far: 12.

Verdict

- Stable is paused, not slower. Before the pause, the rhythm did not slow down: 15 d median in 2026, 13 d overall.
- Freeze until the GitLab → Forgejo move is done (topic 189985).
- GitLab was slow and broke kernel builds (topic 189954).
- Maintainer: "super limited time" (topic 189985).
- Next update will be large: Plasma 6.8, systemd 262, kernel 7.2/7.3.
- Action: `linux71` is end of life since 7.1.13 (topic 190447). Move to `linux72` or keep `linux618` (LTS).

Measure it yourself

1. Read the stable announcements: `forum.manjaro.org/c/announcements/stable-updates/12.rss`
2. Check the date of the last branch change: `curl -s https://mirror.init7.net/manjaro/stable/state`
3. Compare branch versions: `./measure_branch_lag.sh`
4. Count your own update waves: `./measure_local_waves.sh`
5. Rebuild this page: `python3 make_onepager.py`

The `state` date also changes for small security fixes. It is not proof of a full update.
